

U.S. Supreme Court's Seminal Decision: Has It Changed the People's Second Amendment Right to Own a Gun?

March 1, 2013

The Police Chief

By Gary M. Fellner

A headline in September 2012 read, "Gun Range to Let Shooters Take Shots, and Knock Them Back, Too." The article pertains to a couple's decision in Georgia to open a new gun range where they also serve alcohol. Though the catchy headline helps sell newspapers, the body of the article makes it clear that anyone drinking alcohol at this range cannot drink and then shoot. The business will have safeguards to separate the two. Obviously, this is why gun laws exist: to protect the public.