E: TAPride@pbnlaw.com

Tyler Pride partners with individuals, families, closely held businesses, and fiduciaries to navigate sophisticated trust and estate planning, estate administration, and business succession strategies, helping them preserve generational wealth, plan for transitions, and protect what matters most. He is recognized for his ability to help clients safeguard family wealth and protect creative legacies with a blend of technical precision and personal, client-focused counsel.

With an advanced background in U.S. federal income taxation, mergers and acquisitions, and insurance structuring, Tyler brings a rare interdisciplinary perspective to the Private Client space. He navigates complex tax and transactional issues with a pragmatic approach, serving as a trusted advisor to entrepreneurs, business owners, and families who require long-term wealth preservation solutions that balance technical rigor with their unique personal values.

Prior to focusing on wealth preservation, Tyler advised on high-value corporate transactions and private equity deals. This experience allows him to approach estate planning for business owners and investors with the strategic foresight of a deal lawyer, ensuring that business owners and investors have tax-efficient structures that facilitate seamless transitions.

Tyler's professional path is defined by a lifelong commitment to service. He began his career as a Teach for America Corps member in Houston, Texas, an experience that instilled the importance of clear communication and community impact. Clients and colleagues alike value his collaborative style and his ability to translate complex legal and tax concepts into actionable estate and wealth planning strategies.
