Porzio welcomes Caitlin M. Nolan to the Litigation Practice Group as an associate in the New York Office. Prior to joining Porzio, Caitlin worked at the New York County District Attorney's Office as Assistant District Attorney in the Trial Division, where she tried over 20 criminal matters to verdict and presented over 200 cases to the Grand Jury. Caitlin skillfully managed cases through all stages of litigation, for crimes including murder, sexual assault, domestic violence, drug possession, assault, human trafficking, gun possession, and financial fraud. At the District Attorney's Office, Caitlin handled significant and highly sensitive matters as a Homicide Assistant and member of the Sex Crimes Unit, roles she was specially selected for due to her ability to persuasively argue before the judge and jury, thoughtfully and diligently investigate cases, and effectively communicate with all parties to a litigation.

Caitlin received her Bachelor of Arts in Economics from Boston College in 2005. She earned her Juris Doctorate from Fordham University School of Law in 2010. During law school, Caitlin was a legal intern for the Kings County District Attorney's Office, Homicide Bureau, and a Judicial Intern for the Hon. Roslynn R. Mauskopf, United States District Court (E.D.N.Y.).
