By: Martin Healy

Martin J. Healy, principal in the firm's Litigation and Life Sciences Legal, Regulatory, and Compliance teams, has been appointed to a three-year term on the Board of Directors for the International Association of Defense Counsel (IADC) at their annual meeting in Vancouver. This prestigious appointment underscores Marty's dedication and leadership within the legal community.

In addition to his new role on the Board, Healy made significant contributions to the 2024 IADC Midyear and Annual Meetings by serving as the CLE Chair for the Midyear Meeting and Hospitality Chair for the Annual Meeting. His leadership in these roles was instrumental in delivering a successful and engaging event, reflecting his commitment to professional development and member engagement.

As CLE Chair, Healy oversaw the planning and execution of continuing legal education programs, ensuring relevant and high-quality programming for attendees. His efforts as Hospitality Chair enhanced the overall experience of the meeting, fostering networking and camaraderie among members.

The IADC, an invitation-only, peer-reviewed international association founded in 1920, is renowned for its leadership in legal reform and professional development. With approximately 2,500 members worldwide, including representatives from the majority of Fortune 500 companies, the IADC is a prominent force in the legal profession.
