

Sal M. Anderton to lead "Under the Dome" at Montclair State University

July 23, 2013

Sal M. Anderton, an attorney at Porzio, Bromberg & Newman and Legislative Director to Porzio Governmental Affairs, will be leading a course on New Jersey State Government at Montclair State University this fall. Titled "Under the Dome," the class will be Sal's second in State Government as an adjunct professor at the university.

"Under the Dome" will give students the traditional classroom learning experience partnered with an in-depth view of New Jersey's government through work in the State House in Trenton. A few times a month, Sal will bring his class to attend hearings and other relevant programs, and give the students the opportunity to meet and converse with cabinet members and staff. The students will gain knowledge of the state's legislative and political processes through this observation and participation in programs at the State House.

For more information about the course, please click here.